Here are told the adventures of the U. S. Geological Survey, not in dry statistical reports and bluebooks, but graphically woven into a stirring narrative that both pleases and instructs.

The Boy with the U. S. Foresters.

The life of a youthful forester is followed in adventurous detail—the mighty representative of our country's Government though young in years—a youthful monarch in a vast domain of forest.

The Boy with the U. S. Census.

A bright American boy learns the growth and resources of our vast country, and how the necessary information is gathered, the securing of which frequently involves hardship and peril.

The Boy with the U. S. Fisheries.

There is no lack of exciting scenes. The far Aleutian Islands have witnessed more desperate sea-fighting than has occurred elsewhere since the days of the Spanish buccaneers, and pirate craft, which the U. S. Fisheries must watch, rifle in hand, are prowling in the Behring Sea today.

The Boy with the U. S. Indians.

A book thrilling in its human side by the heroism demanded in the little-known adventures of those who do the work of "Uncle Sam." This is especially true of those engaged in work with and for the Indians—always a name to conjure with among boys.

The Boy with the U. S. Explorers.

This volume tells how our Government explores strange places and investigates countless odd forms of plant life in the hope of developing that which may benefit the people of this great land.

The Boy with the U. S. Life-Savers.

This volume, with its typical American boy as a centre, shows how our Government protects its citizens with the aid of the Revenue Cutter Service, the Life-Saving Service, and in the depths of the earth, where men from the Bureau of Mines take the lead in rescue work in colliery disasters.

The Boy with the U. S. Mail.

The officials of the Post Office department have, as in the case of all other departments covered in this series, extended their courtesy to Dr. Rolt-Wheeler to enable him, through the happy medium of a good story, to tell us about one of the most interesting forms of "Uncle Sam's" care for us.

The Boy with the U. S. Weather Men.

Weather is still the most important thing in the life of Man, and Dr. Rolt-Wheeler's new book captures attention as much by the sheer fascination of its subject material as by the deftness with which this is woven into a genuine and gripping boys' story.

The Boy with the U. S. Naturalists.

The Wonder of War in the Air. With illustrations from unusual war photographs and sketches 1.35

It begins with a most thorough yet easily understood explanation of the principles and development of flying machines and the gasoline motor engine. With an American youth as a central figure, and made clear by many illustrations direct from the front, it shows the wonderful training of the French Aviation schools and swiftly brings its hero into thrilling adventures and encounters in the clouds, each of which has its parallels in actual experience. As the Literary Digest says: "It is packed with information that comes step by step, and with the spice that allures to mastery of details given."

The Wonder of War on Land. Illustrated 1.35

(The Museum Books.)

The Monster-Hunters. Illustrated 1.35

It is a story of thrilling adventure, and through its pages writhe or thunder those vast and uncanny monsters that inhabited this world long ago. Yet so carefully has this portrayal been done that there is no false scientific note, and no "nature-faking."

The Polar Hunters. Illustrated 1.35

Strange fights with walrus and polar-bear on the sea, ice perils from drifting floes and crashing bergs, and the constant fight against hunger, cold, and darkness, give this book a glamor as great as is its wealth of information.

TROWBRIDGE (J. T.).

One great merit of all of Trowbridge's stories is their unfailing dramatic fusion and flow. His characters are all vitally conceived, and hence his page is essentially dramatic, full of action and the throb of real life, as distinguished from novels that are merely narrative and descriptive. The interest of his stories is not at all in what he, the author, has to say, but in what his personages do and say. It is not his wit, but their wit, that makes us laugh.

(Books for Boys and Girls.)

Trowbridge understood boys and girls. He knew that boys and girls can be inspired to good, but cannot be driven. And yet not in any of his books is there preaching. He tells his stories in a clean straight-forward manner and boys and girls read out of them also that which Trowbridge did not write but clearly hid between the lines. No other writer has been shown such unflagging loyalty by American boys and girls. To-day, as for years past, his books are to be found in most homes, most libraries, and most bookstores.

CLASSIFIED INDEX.

This classified list does not aim to be complete, but rather suggestive. It contains no books of juvenile or adult fiction, save where the contents of such books are of such a nature as strictly to include them in one of the several classifications, and, therefore, to be regarded as technical. In searching for books dealing with a particular subject, we advise a careful perusal of this entire catalogue, for the reason that each title is accompanied by more or less description, and, as is frequently the case, a book is found to fit a need for which it would not naturally be classified.

"The 'useful conversations' are for once really useful, covering as they do all the requirements of the traveler, and having in a third column a guide to the pronunciation of the foreign words used. The guides are concise and adequate; routes and rates are given, and suitable hotels are recommended. The coins of the various countries are illustrated, and their values explained. Telegrams and letters are drafted in the languages, and cycling and motoring terms given; in fact, nothing of consequence is omitted, and nothing of inconsequence is included. The guides are, therefore, of convenient size for the pocket, and no traveler who is wise will hereafter travel without them."—The Bookseller and Stationer.

BADEN-POWELL, SIR ROBERT, K. C. B. Memories of India, Recollections of Soldiering, Sport, etc. With 24 Illustrations in Color and one hundred Black and White by the Author. Artistically bound in Cloth, 8vo, Boxed . . . . . Net, 3 50

During the twenty-five years spent in India, Sir Robert Baden-Powell filled many note-books with his impressions, and illustrated them with sketches. For years these books have been a source of interest and pleasure to his friends. He has been constantly urged to publish them, but has hitherto been prevented by pressure of work. He has now, however, made time in which to write his recollections of the twenty-five years spent in India, and his book has the virtue of being practically written and illustrated on the spot. He deals with many phases of Indian life, including bungalow life on the plains, social life on the hills; pig-sticking and shooting, ragging and riding, campaigning on the frontier, etc. His is always an original point of view, as for instance when he gives a drawing of a bird's-eye view of a tiger beat, or the qualities that go to make the elephant a gentleman. He is an artist of remarkable talent, which, coupled with a thorough knowledge of his subjects, gives to his pictures and drawings a life and movement that render them quite in keeping with his racy recollections. These Reminiscences were in print in July, 1914, but their publication was deferred owing to the outbreak of war.

BULFINCH'S AGE OF FABLE, OR BEAUTIES OF MYTHOLOGY. New Revised Edition by Rev. J. Loughran Scott. This new edition, while retaining all the features of previous revisions, has a number of new features which make it superior to those of any other works on Mythology yet published. 524 pages. Nearly 200 illustrations.

Crown octavo, ... net, $1 50

LEADING FEATURES, AND OPINIONS CONCERNING THEM.

PRONUNCIATION OF PROPER NAMES.—All proper names are printed in black type, syllabified and accentuated. The editor in his preface says: "To know one you must know his name, especially in Mythology, where names constitute being."

"After years of experience I appreciate the value of the pronunciation of proper names in the body of the text. The time for the study is limited; it is impossible to require incessant use of dictionary. . . . I believe you have done much to secure correct spelling. . . . The illustrations in your edition are a valuable feature.

"The recognition of the mythology of Babylon, Assyria, and Phœnicia I consider timely."—Mary L. Hanna, Teacher of English, Central High School, Cleveland, Ohio.

BULFINCH'S AGE OF CHIVALRY, or KING ARTHUR AND HIS KNIGHTS. New Revised Edition by Rev. J. Loughran Scott. This New Edition, uniform with "The Age of Fable," has been thoroughly revised and a number of new chapters added. The numerous illustrations have been prepared with great care and considerable expense. As "The Age of Fable" superseded all former editions of that book, so this edition of "The Age of Chivalry" is far superior to any other work on the subject yet published.

Crown octavo, ... net, 1 50

"No one can read this edition of 'The Age of Chivalry' without coming in contact with the best literature of the Arthurian Legends. While retaining the old, at the same time we have created a new work. The interest of these legends naturally centers about King Arthur and Queen Guinevere. In the case of Guinevere we have added a new section, and also enlarged the chapter that treats of Arthur and the passing of his kingdom. The names ranking next in interest are those of Launcelot and Elaine; here, too, we have written an additional section. At the close of the first part we have inserted a chapter on Mediæval Legends. St. George and Robin Hood attach to an importance scarcely surpassed by King Arthur himself. We have also drawn directly from Sir Thomas Mallory, especially in connection with the adventures of Sir Tor, Sir Pellenore, Sir Gawain, Sir Launcelot, and Sir Galahad."

"A Third Part with seven additional chapters has been added, consisting largely of the writings of Ossian. Whatever may have been the origin of those strange books, they certainly embody more of the ancient spirit of Britain than any other similar work."

DAWSON, MARY. The Mary Dawson Game Book. In planning the home entertainments, which have become in this country such a delightful part of the social life of every community, there is nothing in which the hostess stands more frequently in need than good original games. The games of to-day are as diversified as those who assemble at parties, and this book covers every occasion. For the young, run-about games; for the sedate, question games and guessing contests; for boys and girls who will follow a college course in the near future, games with a college flavor; for tiny tots, games so simple that even a three-year-old can grasp them.

In this book practically all the pastimes and contests described are original inventions of the author. A few good old games which seem to have been forgotten in our day and generation, have been revived and included, being too good to be allowed to sink into oblivion.

For all such affairs an original idea is essential and those who fail do so for lack of a novel plan.

Vest-Pocket Compendium of Applied Electricity. By Paul E. Lowe, M.E., written especially for officials and employees of all grades in Electric Railway, Lighting and Industrial Systems. This work is profusely illustrated, containing over 214 illustrations, and is supplemented with a voluminous vocabulary of electrical terms and phrases.

For students of electricity, its origin and nature, and for everybody interested in any one or all of the branches of activity in the modern industries, arts and sciences, where electricity is applied, this comprehensive and conveniently arranged little work is invaluable. Whilst covering the whole field of electrical science, embodying in each subject all the salient and essential features, the author, recognizing the ever increasing importance of the Electric Railway in the development of modern business and social life, has prepared the portion of this volume treating that subject, with greater elaboration than is usual in restricted works, and with far more than ordinary care and scientific precision.

A leading characteristic of the entire work is its thoroughly practical nature and lucid explanation of all principles by means of diagrams of circuits, etc.

Immediately after each index word follow words similar in meaning—synonyms—and thereafter, again, in parentheses, a series of words opposite thereto in meaning—antonyms. A knowledge of words is the most direct possible test of culture and civilization. Increase your vocabulary—it will pay in dollars and cents.

Conklin's Vest-pocket Book of Familiar Quotations. By Prof. Geo. W. Conklin, of Hamilton University. No one can be expected to remember the exact words of the great authors he has read, and indeed no one has time to read over even hastily a tithe of the good things that the ages have accumulated. Hence a little book like this is indispensable. As we turn over its pages we are reminded of many wise and witty sentences we had forgotten, and we discover others we wonder at ourselves for having missed. Such a book is not to be read through at a sitting. Rather it is to be tasted every day or two.

Faulty Diction—or, Errors in the Use of the English Language, and How to Correct Them. (Vest-Pocket Size.) Thomas H. Russell, LL. B., editor-in-chief of Webster's Imperial Dictionary, did the public a great service when he wrote this book in which there are 1017 headings treated, and under some of them—plurals for instance—over fifty every-day errors are illustrated and corrected.

Who does not make errors in speech? Probably there is no person who does not do so occasionally. To use the English language with correctness would be a phenomenon. But there are numerous faulty expressions so widely employed as to have secured something of the status of perfect diction. Many people who ought to know better believe them to be proper, and will defend them with promptitude and even passion. There is a large number of common blunders so grotesquely stupid that they raise one's gorge. They are so common that many people think the improper form the correct one.

Ogilvie's Concise World's Atlas and Gazetteer. Based Upon the Latest Census Reports and Official Estimates.

By L. Brent Vaughan, Ph.B. The plan on which this Gazetteer is arranged is somewhat different from that usually followed. A word of explanation, however, will suffice to point out the superior method used. In the main the arrangement is alphabetic. Under the leading Political Divisions are grouped the principal facts pertaining to those divisions. For example, under France are included all the departments and the principal cities of the French Republic, with their populations according to the latest census. Likewise all mountain ranges in the world are grouped under Mountain Ranges, the rivers under Rivers, lakes under Lakes, oceans under Oceans, capes under Capes, straits, channels and sounds under Straits. This is the only gazetteer published so arranged.

The Jefferson Bible. By Thomas Jefferson. The third president of the United States, by clipping from the Gospels of Matthew, Mark, Luke and John, compiled a connected narrative, which he entitled, The Life and Morals of Jesus of Nazareth. The compilation begins with the first verse of the second chapter of Luke and ends with the last portion of the sixtieth verse of the twenty-seventh chapter of Matthew. In the compilation he made use of 120 different clippings, changing from one of the Gospels to another, and frequently back again to the same chapter for another verse; in some instances taking a considerable portion of a chapter exactly as it appears in the Bible, in others rearranging the verses as best suited his purpose, and in still others using a few verses or only a small part of a given verse to round out some portion of the narrative.

The Professor of one of our largest Universities claims that through the use of certain Cartoons and Phonetic Spelling, you ought to be able to play a Game and at the same time learn enough Spanish or French to be able to ask and answer: 60 Every Day and Useful Questions; you will be able to ask for 40 Articles of Food; 10 Articles connected with Dinner Service; you will be able to use 10 Dinner Table Expressions; 10 Idioms—and you will get sufficient grammar to allow you to use a vocabulary of 350 words and over. All of this information has been put on sixty-one cards, size 2½ by 3½ inches, and forms the interesting game of "Lingo."

THE COLLECTORS' SERIES

No path is so full of pitfalls as that of the amateur collector. In spite of text-books and elaborately illustrated volumes, he finds that the information he has absorbed is rarely that which is called for in practical experience. He returns to his guides and eventually concludes that the writer knows too much to descend to his level of inexperience. The Collectors' Handbooks are written not from the point of view of the experienced, but from that of one who knows nothing and wants to learn a great deal. Only those who have bought their experience with the currency of error can thoroughly appreciate the many difficulties with which the beginner has to contend. It is this sympathetic attitude towards the reader that makes many of these volumes unique. The editors are acquainted with all the various works on the subjects with which they deal; and, feeling that these volumes were above the heads of beginners, they set themselves to ask the question, "What information is a man most likely to require in the early stages of his hobby?" Instead of arguing from general principles to particular instances, these books reverse the process: pieces explain principles rather than principles being illustrated by pieces.

LOTI, PIERRE. Jerusalem. Translated by W. P. Baines. This is probably the best of Loti's travel books. There are many books on the Holy Land, but not one that has in it anything such as Loti has put into this, nor one that makes Christ seem more real, and yet all the time the author professes to be an unbeliever. It has an extraordinary charm and fascination, and believers and unbelievers alike will appreciate it. It is a book which will be appreciated by the clergy in spite of the author's avowed unbelief. The Robertsonian Method of learning the German, French, Spanish, Latin, and Italian languages, without the aid of a teacher, has for the last twenty years been successfully tested throughout the whole European continent; and is, without a single exception, used in teaching these languages in all the educational institutions of England, France, and Germany. In London, Mr. A. H. Monteith, the most celebrated teacher of languages in the world, has arranged and perfected this system; and his works on the Study of French, German, Spanish, Latin, and Italian Languages Without a Master, immediately obtained a sudden and extraordinary popularity.

A prominent U. S. Congressman recently consulted a leading specialist—professor in the Medical College of Johns Hopkins University—and after being charged $50.00 for a diagnosis, was told to "Buy a copy of Lieut. Müller's Book 'MY SYSTEM,' follow his directions and take no medicine." The congressman afterwards stated that the prescription was worth many times the cost. This story is vouched for by the Hon. A. W. Lafferty.

MY SYSTEM: Fifteen Minutes a Day for Health's Sake.

By Lieut. J. P. Müller. With 44 illustrations and a Time Chart. This book embodies what is stated to be the most adaptable and most scientific system of Home Exercise known. It is graded so as to make it of service to young people, elderly people, and to people not physically fit. It can be performed in whichever degree is chosen in 15 minutes, and this time includes the taking of a bath. No apparatus of any kind is required. "My System" is divided into two parts—eight exercises before the bath and ten rubbing exercises after. The system is primarily intended for people who desire to obtain and retain good health. The whole of the movements are designed to strengthen the internal organs of the body. 8vo, cloth, ... Net, $1 00

MY SYSTEM FOR LADIES. Lieut. Müller has adapted his System of Exercise to the special requirements of ladies—both young and old. The exercises are of extreme value in enabling young women to preserve and older women to regain suppleness, shapeliness, energy and health.

Seek health aright and you will attain beauty. No woman is unbeautiful if really healthy, and therefore every woman can enhance her beauty by improving her health—at a cost of only a few minutes' daily practice of "My System."

MY SYSTEM FOR CHILDREN is an adaptation of Lieut. Müller's famous System to the needs of children. It is similar to his other books in the sense that it is entirely free from crankiness, or impossible and extreme measures. It is a book which will be appreciated by every parent who wishes his or her children to grow up to strength and vitality, and to possess adequate powers of resistance to illness and fatigue, and like Lieut. Müller's System for men and women it is carefully and scientifically graded so as not to overtax or strain the muscles of the child. Also, as in the case of his other books, the author has based his System not on theory only, but on the results of actual experience.

MY BREATHING SYSTEM. Everybody knows that without air we should be unable to exist more than a few minutes, but that it is possible to exist for at least a week without water, while people have fasted from food for from 40 to 70 days and even longer. Air is nutriment, therefore, of even more importance than liquid and solid foods.

Followers of "My System" will know what importance Lieut. Müller has always attached to correct breathing. It is to the practically universal neglect of the Art of Breathing that the author attributes the prevalence of many diseases, especially those which attack the Lungs, Thorax, Heart and the Blood.

"Teach children to breathe properly," says Lieut. Müller, "and the spread of the Great White Scourge would be appreciably diminished." The best curative measure for Anemia, Chlorosis, Gout, Diabetes and other diseases of Metabolism is, he maintains, the regular practice of deep breathing exercises.

STODDART, A. M. The Life of Paracelsus. The revived interest in Magnetic and Faith Healing, and the much more sympathetic attitude lately adopted by the leaders of modern science towards an intellectual interpretation of life, till recently dismissed as savoring of superstition and charlatanry, gives an added interest to the life story of one of the greatest Mediæval pioneers of Occult Science in its bearing on the problems of Psycho-Therapeutics. While Paracelsus was in fact the real founder of Homœopathy, he was also the first physician to apply in practice the principles of Magnetism and Magnetic Healing. He laid the foundations of a new system built on evidence rather than on the out-worn traditions of the Medicine of his day. This system comprised within itself not only a practical guide to the medical art but also a spiritual philosophy of life.

"It aims to give the growing as well as the grown Whitman. The accepted readings are given in the text. Each poem has been carefully compared with that appearing in all previous editions, and the changes have been inserted in foot-notes. The lines have been numbered, by which means the reader can readily compare the various readings and mark their transformations. Under the head of 'Gathered Leaves' I have collected such poems as have been dropped by the way, some of which appeared in only one, and others in several editions. I was frequently called upon to give information concerning poems whose headings had been changed. These have been noted, and in the alphabetical list at the end of the volume all such titles appear, with reference to the present title."—Preface.

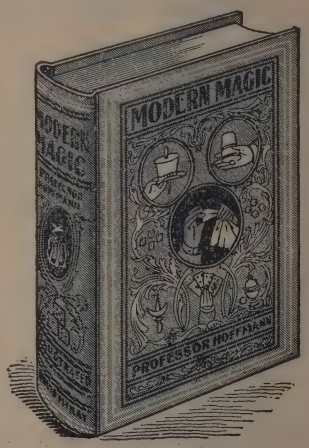
Many of these are simple pastimes, others possess a really scientific character, while the whole of these experiments may be performed without any special apparatus whatever. To give an idea of the endless variety of the work, we quote a few problems: A Rolling Body Goes Uphill, Foucault's Pendulum, The Egg in Salt Water, How to Make a Banana Peel Itself, Wine Changed to Water, The Plate on the Point of a Needle, How to Pierce a Nickel with a Needle, The Revolving Siphon, The Miniature Steamship, The Bottle Cannon, The Waltzing Egg, The Water Pendulum, In Water but not Wet, The Magic Ball, etc., etc. This entertaining book, written in language that every one can understand, gives the best answer to the so often repeated question, "What shall we do to-night?"

HOFFMANN, PROF. Modern Magic. A Practical Treatise on the Art of Conjuring. By Professor Hoffmann. With 318 Illustrations; 563 pages. With an Appendix containing explanations of many of the best known specialties of Maskelyne and Cooke. A handsome and substantial book, containing 300 tricks. Large 12mo, bound in cloth, . 1 50



Is a treatise, and a very practical one, on the art of conjuring, in its various and bewildering departments, some of which require special apparatus, most of which require that dexterity known as sleight-of-hand. There are, for example, card tricks which can be played with ordinary cards and without sleight-of-hand, and others again which demand special apparatus. There are coin tricks, tricks with watches, rings, handkerchiefs, dominoes, dice, etc.

The tricks are clearly and comprehensively explained by diagrams and illustrations when necessary. This book will afford an inexhaustible fund of amusement in a family where the young people are fond of games and are quick in acquiring these things. The explanations are given most comprehensively, and cover an immense field; besides, the book is filled with illustrations demonstrating the easiest way to accomplish these feats of legerdemain, magic, etc.

There is a vast difference between telling how a trick is done and teaching how to do it. This is the only book that teaches how to do it.

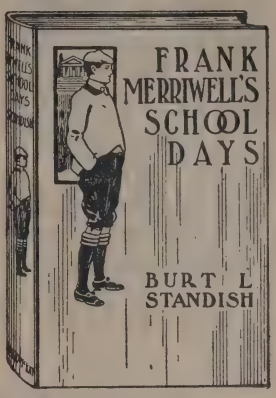
The Famous Frank Merriwell Stories. BURT L. STANDISH.



No modern series of tales for boys and youths has met with anything like the cordial reception and popularity accorded to the Frank Merriwell Stories. There must be a reason for this and there is. He has no bad habits, and his manliness inculcates the idea that it is not necessary for a boy to indulge in petty vices to be a hero. Frank Merriwell's example is a shining light for every ambitious lad to follow. Twenty-eight volumes now ready:

AMERICAN BOY'S WORKSHOP, THE. By Clarence B. Kelland. For every boy who succeeded in making something he wanted there are a hundred who failed—and they failed because they didn't know just how to go at it. If they had a hint or a few suggestions as to plan, or a drawing to follow, they would have built their fishpoles or boats or desks. And that is one of the reasons for publishing this book—to give the boy the help he must have to make what he needs.

Fully illustrated. Large 12mo, cloth, net, $1 25

In the preparation of this book the editor has secured the best men to write the various departments. For instance, "Things for Boys to Make" has been prepared by John L. Dougheny, who edits the "For Boys to Make" column of The American Boy Magazine. The chapter on "Signalling" was written by Lieutenant W. S. Anderson of the United States Navy. The chapter on "Small Furbearers and How to Catch Them" was written by George J. Thiesen, a noted trapper and woodsman. The chapter on the Bow and Arrow is by A. Hyatt Verrill, and so on, making a complete handybook for boys, not by one man, but many men of wide experience, each writing about the subject he knows best.

"The American boy is always interested in a good book treating on electrical experiments of a practical and interesting nature. There have been a great many books written in the past few years, intended for the electrically inclined youths of the land, but we do not remember seeing a more worthy volume in a long time than here presented by Mr. Seaver. The volume is profusely illustrated with clear-cut drawings, which can be readily understood by young boys of from ten to fourteen years, and all of the important fundamental magnetic and electrical laws with their accompanying actions and reactions have been cleverly and interestingly woven thru the experiments outlined.

That Mr. Patten, the author of the "Rockspur Series," has written another series of books for boys is good news indeed. Clif Stirling is a bright, wholesome, clean American boy, and the following of his career in school and college sports means a notable addition to books of the best character for juvenile readers.

——— Clif Stirling, Captain of the Nine. An exciting story of the events at Fairfield Academy during the baseball season. The description of the games for the championship with Belmont High School at the end of the season will appeal to any boy who is interested in school sports.

"Everyone who enjoys a lively, well-played game of baseball will find plenty in this book to thrill him. As a boy reader expresses it, you can fairly see the plays made and watch what each player is about."—Young People's Weekly, Elgin, Ill.

"I have read your book 'Clif Stirling, Captain of the Nine,' and enjoyed it very much. The story is a good one and should appeal to all young men who are in any way interested in athletic sports."—HARRY H. DAVIS, Captain Philadelphia Athletics, 1911 World's Champions.

——— Clif Stirling Behind the Line. A capital story of the football season at Fairfield. Introducing "The New Boy" Arthur Gregory who was regarded as a quitter, but saves the championship by his good play in the final game.

"It is a stirring story of boy life on the athletic field, just the kind of a story the real boy likes, and just the kind for him, clean, wholesome and entirely within his range."—Pittsburg Dispatch, June 11, 1911.

"The manly way in which the youth acts under all sorts of conditions commends him to everyone. So 'Clif Stirling Behind the Line' will be much appreciated."—The Boston Globe, May 20, 1911.

——— Clif Stirling, Stroke of the Crew. The third volume of the series is like the first two books, a tale of school boy sports, struggles, temptations, defeats, and victories in which big-hearted manly Clif plays the most prominent part.

——— Clif Stirling, Freshman at Stormbridge. The fourth volume of the Clif Stirling Series relates the experience and adventure of Clif Stirling during his first year at college.

——— Clif Stirling Sophomore at Stormbridge. The fifth volume of the Series is full of genuine healthy college life and shows the hero in character of "The Big Brother" to Jack who enters as a freshman.

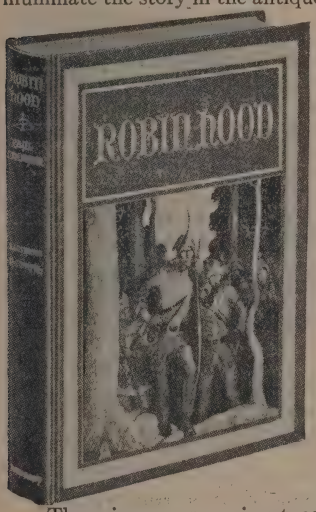
Reflections Concerning the Illustrating of "Robin Hood."

Given "Robin Hood" to illustrate, the temptation is strong to the artist to illuminate the story in the antique manner of Albrecht Durer, for instance, as most fitting and appropriate to the character and medieval period of the Ballads. This point of view is admirable and has proven itself so in several well-known editions of the book. However, I have always felt in these pictures a certain thinness of dramatic presentation and a lack of rugged appeal which in no way parallels or corresponds with the virile spirit of the ancient legend.



This wonderful story fairly reeks with the spirit of the out of doors, sunlight and wind, dark forests and shining meadows. The men that roam this countryside are flesh and blood, faces sun-tanned and roughened, their clothes coarse made and stained and fragrant of wood-smoke and scorched venison! One feels them to be capable of all the deeds, good and bad, attributed to them. We become identified with real people. We sense a contemporary quality in them.

So must the picture maker work in a strictly contemporaneous way. He should build his characters as real characters, his trees as real trees and in a manner contemporary to his time, emotionally and technically.

There is one pre-eminent contribution that the artist can offer in so-called historical painting for the revisualizing of a vanished past, and that is achieved by referring to the Nature he knows for as much of his material as possible. Sunlight is to-day what it always was; the tanned features of a Pennsylvania ploughman is a counterpart of men of the Greenwood. What countryman of to-day would not fit perfectly into the leather tabard and green hood of the countryman of the eleventh century? The toques which my Swiss grandmother knitted for us boys at home are transformed in an instant, in my mind's eye, into a perfect head-piece for the broad face of Will Stutely, or for old Warrenton, perhaps!

It is with these thoughts in mind that I will launch into the business of illustrating "Robin Hood." My aim will be to create, as far as I am able, a background for the reader of convincing compositions of the old English countryside and its human interests, the motifs appropriately selected and universal in dramatic appeal.—N. C. Wyeth.

STAPP, EMILIE B. The Go-Hawk Series. Only a few of us really know and understand children. Still fewer have the exquisite human talent of interpreting the childish heart. "Go-Hawks" goes into that small choice class that is about children and is for grown-ups too. Who will derive the more pleasure from these stories—the parents who read them aloud or the children who listen—will be hard to determine.

VAN LOON, HENDRIK WILLEM, A.B., Ph.D. A Short History of Discovery from the Earliest Times to the Founding of the Colonies. Written and drawn and done in color. This book does not intend to give children all the facts about all the events of the earliest discoveries of Greenland, Iceland, and America. It merely says, "dear children, history is the most fascinating and entertaining and instructive of arts." It tells us of men of great courage and people who knew how to die for their convictions. It shows us how very difficult it is to achieve anything in this world and how we have to work for everything we want to accomplish. WARREN, CARRO FRANCES. The Garden Series. The child who reads the Garden Series will look with new eyes upon the great beautiful outdoors. No other books inspire such love for the simple beauties of nature, nor give instruction in such a charming way. Flowers of garden and wayside become in these delightful pages individuals with all the characteristics of well-known acquaintances. Without realizing where he has acquired the knowledge, the child will gain a tender familiarity with these blossoms of summer, recalling them as tried and faithful friends.

The sweetness and joy of country and garden and woodland breathes through every sentence. To the country boy and girl they are a real delight, to the dweller in the city they are a revelation.

There is a double page in colors showing all the flowers mentioned in the story and to identify each will afford a valuable nature study for little readers.

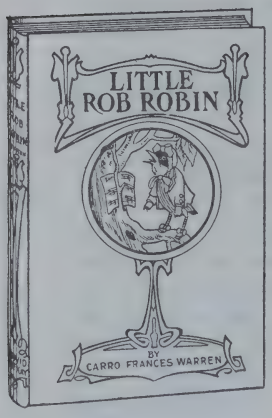
WARREN, CARRO FRANCES. Birdland Fairy Series.

LITTLE ROB ROBIN.



Every feathered songster that fills the woods with his music and cheerful twitter will be found in "The Birdland Fairy Series," which Miss Warren is bringing out to delight afresh her vast army of childish admirers.

In "Little Rob Robin" every chapter is a glimpse into a world of new delights. Such marvelous characters!—Rob and his sisters, Twitter and Fluffy, Dr. Wren and his amazing prescriptions for sick birds, talkative Miss Pecketty Pewee, funny Mrs. Wagtail, and a host of others equally amusing.

And Birdland is a place where such surprising things happen—the Woodpeckers' Surprise Party, for instance, the mishaps that befell disobedient little Rob, and many other astonishing and amusing things.

LITTLE CHICK CHICKADEE.

What little reader can fail to find intense delight in "Little Chick Chickadee?" The visit to the Rabbit family—the clever ruse by which the birds gained admittance—the advent of such wholly charming characters as the Snowflake Sisters, the Nuthatch family, and the villain of the play, Mr. Cunning Crow—these are links in a chain of happenings that hold the reader spellbound by their very originality and freshness.

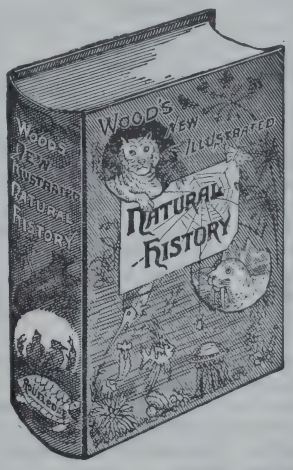
WOOD, REV. J. G., M.A. Popular Natural History. With 600 Illustrations by Wolf, Harrison Weir, and others. Handsomely bound, stamped in Gold and Colors. Crown 8vo, cloth, ... $1 50

No science exerts a greater influence in broadening and elevating the mind than that which treats of the nature, structure, and habits of the lower animals. This volume is made more interesting than most works on natural history for young readers because of its simple, graphic language, its accurate classification, and the number of anecdotes, nearly all of them new, which illustrate the ferocity or docility, the instinct and traits, of the humbler inhabitants of the earth. It is a condensation of his larger work, and has been prepared especially for the instruction and entertaining of the young.

WOOD, REV. J. G., M.A. New Illustrated Natural History. With many Hundred Illustrations from Designs by Wolf, Zwecker, Weir, Coleman, Harvey, and other Artists, engraved by the Brothers Dalziel. Stamped in Gold and Colors. Large 8vo, cloth, 2 50



Wood's "Natural History," with its charming descriptions and delightful anecdotes of all animals, both domestic and wild, is the greatest authority in the land. It gives, minutely and in the simplest language, the habits, haunts, diseases, and peculiarities of the entire animal kingdom. The descriptions of the animals are truthful and interesting. Their portraits, as shown in the hundreds of illustrations, are accurately drawn, and make us realize the variety and beauty of earth's creatures. The life and habits of animals, reptiles, birds, etc., are of equal interest to old and young.

The Mary Dawson Game Book

Price, $1.25 Net

In planning the home entertainments, which have become in this country such a delightful part of the social life of every community, there is nothing in which the hostess stands more frequently in need than good original games. The games of today are as diversified as those who assemble at parties, and this book covers every occasion. For the young, run-about games; for the sedate, question games and guessing contests; for boys and girls who will follow a college course in the near future, games with a college flavor; for tiny tots, games so simple that even a three-year-old can grasp them.

In this book practically all the pastimes and contests described are original inventions of the author. A few good old games, which seem to have been forgotten in our day and generation, have been revived and included, being too good to be allowed to sink into oblivion.

GAMES FOR BOYS AND GIRLS.
GAMES FOR ADULTS.

Money-Making Entertainments

FOR

Church and Charity

By MARY DAWSON

Price, $1.00 Net

Some of the noblest works of church and charity are maintained by men and women who are not of the moneyed class. Energy and devotion are their offering to the cause, and these most frequently take the form of arranging entertainments to draw in sums large or small. For all such affairs an original idea is essential and those which fail do so for lack of a novel plan. Mary Dawson, whose original entertainments of every description have a country-wide reputation, has this year prepared a book especially for those who want to raise money. It abounds in plans of every kind from the simplest social to the largest fair, from a dance to a pageant. The following excerpts which represent from the table of contents will give some idea of the wide scope of this new book.
